

Ecosystem Update

Published December 31, 2025

CipheX Alpha (Formerly Alpha Centurion Network)

CipheX completed development of the CipheX Asset Management System (CipheX Alpha) during the second half of 2025 and initiated live market trading to validate proof of concept and support continuous system refinement. Since entering live market conditions in late May, CipheX Alpha has delivered strong performance through year-end, demonstrating operational resilience, execution consistency, and reliability in real markets. CipheX will publish these initial test results on the CipheX platform in January for reference, including opening its view-only dashboard to see live market performance of the CipheX Alpha system.

Ongoing enhancements will continue as CipheX advances toward commercial deployment, targeted sometime in 2026. This next phase is being structured with regulatory assurance as a core design principle, aligning the CipheX Alpha Ecosystem with current and anticipated regulatory frameworks governing autonomous portfolio management platforms. This disciplined approach positions CipheX for scalable adoption, institutional credibility, and long-term relevance within an evolving global marketplace.

Preparation for Market Trading of CipheX Tokens

CipheX will begin preparing its CipheX Tokens for open market trading on or before the end of March 2026. All related platform enhancements, marketing expansion, token supply adjustments, and financing are part of the coordinated preparation for open market trading. Beginning in January and continuing through the anticipated market opening, CipheX will implement phased improvements to the CipheX platform alongside increased marketing and promotional activity to strengthen market readiness and commercial visibility. In addition, CipheX will automatically execute its planned token burn effective January 1, 2026, reducing excess supply by approximately 32%, with updated tokenomics published on the CipheX site in early January. Financing during this preparation period will be provided internally, with any subsequent financing structured to comply with applicable regulatory frameworks, thereby ensuring a disciplined, compliant transition into open-market trading.

CipheX will provide more frequent updates on this exciting phase of our growth as we enter 2026.

Happy New Year.

About The CipheX Ecosystem
